

TITLE
An Unexpected Surprise

written by Jeremy Sherman

Author
Jeremy Sherman

Address
Phone
E-mail

INT. HALLWAY - DAY

RANDAL walks down the hallway and is about to enter his room.

JEREMY

Wait, you don't want to go in there.

JEREMY appears. RANDAL turns to look at him?

RANDAL

Why wouldn't I want to go in there? It's my room.

JEREMY

Yeah, but there's, stuff, going on in there.

RANDAL

Stuff?

JEREMY

Yeah, you know like, there were some wild monkey's that got loose and they climbed through your open window-

RANDAL

My window was closed and locked.

JEREMY

-your now perminately open window and they're doing stuff in there.

RANDAL

Really. Wild monkey's.

JEREMY

Orangitans. I don't know why I said monkey's.

RANDAL

Are you trying to play some sort of joke on me?

JEREMY

Why do you ask?

RANDAL

This does seem to be your idea of comedy.

(MORE)

RANDAL (CONT'D)

There's a normal person doing a normal thing, then someone else comes up and is either doing or saying something ridiculous and then it whatever they were doing or saying turns out to be true.

JEREMY

Wait, so are you saying you believe the whole monkey's thing?

RANDAL

No. I don't think.

JEREMY

Okay, that's good. If you did I'd seriously question the state of your mental health.

RANDAL

So that's it then, jokes over?

RANDAL reaches for his doorknob.

JEREMY

But no, seriously, you don't want to go in there.

RANDAL

I thought you were done with the monkey's.

JEREMY

Orangitans. But the real reason you shouldn't go in there is that there was an oil spill and they haven't come to clean it up yet.

RANDAL

You're saying there was an oil spill in my room? And who's this "they" that are going to come clean it up?

JEREMY

The oil spill cleanup people...

RANDAL

No.

JEREMY

You wouldn't want to track oil all over the house, would you?

RANDAL
I can't believe I'm saying this, but there isn't an oil spill and I can tell because I'd be able to smell it.

JEREMY
Not if your nose is stuffed up.

RANDAL
But it isn't.

JEREMY
But how do you know?

RANDAL
Because it's my nose!

JEREMY
All right all right, no need to be defensive.

RANDAL again reaches for his doorknob.

JEREMY (CONT'D)
But no, seriously, don't go in.

RANDAL
Why? What is it this time?

JEREMY
There's an assassin waiting for you.

RANDAL
No.

JEREMY
A fissure opened up in the earth.

RANDAL
Uh-uh.

JEREMY
A wormhole appeared-

RANDAL
Nope.

JEREMY
Elvis Presley is hiding there!

RANDAL
No.

JEREMY Orangitans!

RANDAL
You tried that already.

JEREMY
Oh yeah. Did I do oil spill yet?

RANDAL opens the door and goes in. There is a banner that says "Happy Birthday" on the wall.

JEREMY (CONT'D)
There, are you happy?

Beat.

JEREMY (CONT'D)
Are you going to say anything?

RANDAL turns back to look at JEREMY.

RANDAL
I guess I'm still waiting for the punchline.

JEREMY punches RANDAL in the face and RANDAL falls over.